Working side by side with educators to maximize student learning

Reading, Writing, and Inquiry in the Music Room

Can reading, writing, and inquiry support music-making? Yes! Join other music educators to become knowledgeable about inquiry-based learning in the music room. Inquiry often involves reading and writing, too, so together we'll expand our work to study Iowa Core literacy standards and identify ones that best connect with music. Collaborate with others and apply your learning in activities you can use in your classroom – activities that enhance music learning!
