Working side by side with educators to maximize student learning

Standards-Based Teaching & Learning in the Music Room

Is your school moving into standards-based or standards-referenced learning, and you are looking for examples from a music classroom (rather than math or language arts)? Here is an opportunity to discuss the research and practical implementation of standards-based teaching and learning in a music classroom with an experienced music educator. Each day there will be collaborative work time so you will take away tools and assessments to use in your classroom.
